Amazon Partners with DCCF to Support Community Emergency Relief Fund

[Douglas County Colorado, February 4, 2022]. Today, the Douglas County Community Foundation (DCCF) announced a $10,000 donation from Amazon to DCCF's Community Emergency Relief Fund. This fund allows DCCF to provide financial support and operational assistance to local organizations and those impacted by future community emergencies.

"We are all very aware of how quickly an emergency situation can impact a community," said Mike Waid, Executive Director of the Douglas County Community Foundation. "DCCF is uniquely positioned to respond with agile funds and effective relationships for when our community is faced with its next emergency situation."

"Amazon recognizes the critical importance of community organizations in responding quickly to emergency situations," said Brittany Morris Saunders, Amazon's Head of Community Affairs in Denver. "We're proud of our partnership with DCCF as it allows us to directly impact the emergency preparedness of the communities where our employees, our customers and our partners live and work."

DCCF is proud to maintain strong corporate partnerships, such as Amazon's, which allow much needed funds to have the greatest impact on the Douglas County community. "Amazon's generous support of DCCF shows their commitment to our community," said Waid.

Donations to DCCF's Community Emergency Relief Fund can be made online at dccf.org.
