$35,000 Awarded to Nine Douglas County Nonprofits

Douglas County Community Foundation awards grants to address mental health challenges and support nonprofits in our community

[Douglas County Colorado, July 21, 2022]. Douglas County Community Foundation (DCCF) awarded nine grants to local nonprofit organizations totaling $35,000. Four $7,000 grants were awarded to nonprofits who provide a mental health focus in Douglas County. Five general grants, four $1,500 and one $1,000, were awarded to other Douglas County nonprofits to help with their missions to serve our community.

Grants were awarded to:

- Mental Health Grants
 - Aspen Effect
 - Hide in Plain Sight
 - Johnny's Ambassadors
 - SE Counseling
- General Grants
 - Backpack Society
 - Colorado Agriculture Leadership Foundation (CALF)
 - Hope & Help Center
 - Hope's Promise
 - Parker Senior Center

"DCCF is an organization dedicated to helping local Douglas County nonprofits thrive," said Mike Waid, Executive Director of the Douglas County Community Foundation. "These grants are examples of how the generous gifts of our donor partners will make a demonstrable impact on our community, today and into the future."

DCCF works diligently to help local nonprofits, of all sizes, thrive in their missions. "This is how we serve our community," said Waid. "We bring together donor partners who entrust us as stewards of their financial gifts with worthy and vetted local Douglas County nonprofit organizations to make a real difference in our community and help those in need."
